IS NO NEWS GOOD NEWS?

Very little has happened since last year. Nedlands Council has failed to find any nudists on its land (south of the border) so no prosecutions are imminent. The State Government remains inert as usual. The local residents have stopped bleating. The media did a pleasant little story about the bike service. But is all this inaction good (albeit relaxing)? We are still not legal. The situation remains that we are not troubled by local council by-laws but State law still applies, even though the Government admits it cannot be successfully enacted.

Rex Gate stirred Fremantle Council to approve a free beach "behind the tanks" between Port and Leighton beaches. The upshot is, the Council has no jurisdiction there, only a Government department (just like Swanbourne.) And the Port Authority is not keen to prosecute. Facilities abound and there are no reefs or waves. So if you live in the south, give it a go. As the numbers grow, more will be attracted and eventually it will be accepted, like Swanbourne.

We are now encumbered with a new State Premier, Peter Dowding, with his new cabinet of power brokers. I for one will not be letting too much grass grow under their feet before they are "acquainted" with our problems, namely Government inaction. Perhaps you have noticed that of the three victimless crimes, i.e. gambling, prostitution and nude bathing, the first two are being legalised but nude bathing, although harmless, misses out again.

But then there is no money involved in nudism - except the tourist dollar!

My arguments are based on the facts that the relevant laws are out of date and ineffective but easily changed. Also we are the taxpaying public using a public beach and hence deserve facilities equal to other popular beaches. Surely the need for ablutions and parking is not dependent on what you wear at a beach? So watch the news.

What about you? How strongly do you feel about your beach?

ACQUISITIONS

Last year the beach people attended a night at Gobbles Night Club which netted us some $850. It is intended to use this for the betterment of life at the beach. To this end I have asked around to find out what people want. We have purchased a sturdy First Aid box (see Arthur), two frisbees, racquets and ball, volley balls, a two-way radio for future emergency contact with the surf club and (in case you haven't noticed) an inflatable raft. This requires at least two people to inflate it each morning and carry it down and back to the shop - it's not heavy. Please make more suggestions and enjoy the facilities provided.
